OPPOSE PLAYING OF INTERNATIONAL POLITICS AT MEET

(By The Associated Press)
NEW YORK, April 14.—A protest in the House of Representatives against the "playing of international politics" by the Lausanne conference with the Constantinople refugee situation, was made public by the Near East relief.

His statement, made in Constantinople, was that he was leaving on a United States destroyer for the Caucasian coast.

"I came to the Near East to make a survey of refugee conditions, and find the situation unquestionably in a state of acute emergency. There are twenty-five thousand persons in crowded Constantinople camps who would have already died, except for the supplies and medical care given by American agencies."

"I see no immediate possibility of penetration to Anatolia therefore it is vitally important that the world powers insist upon a definite settlement of the refugee problem, both here and along the Black Sea."

"Will Lausanne again play international politics without regard to human lives? Ever seeks relief means hundreds of deaths among these refugees. The present death rate in Constantinople refugee camps, owing to impossible living conditions, is outrageous."

ROANOKE PLANS THOUSAND ROOM HOTEL IN CITY

(By The Associated Press)
ROANOKE, Va., April 14.—A three hundred room hotel, twelve stories in height, estimated to cost around a million dollars, which, from time to time, will be enlarged so as to include one thousand rooms, will be built here on a site to be announced later, according to information obtained from an authoritative source this afternoon.

The state corporation commission yesterday, it is understood, granted a charter for this purpose. It was stated in the charter that authorized capital stock of the hotel organization would be $500,000.

The new hotel and the proposed new Shrine Temple would be located on perhaps adjoining lots, it was related. The Shrine Temple will cost a million and a quarter dollars, it is reported.

By the time Roanoke celebrates its fiftieth birthday, which will be about nine years hence, the new hotel, to be built upon the unit plan, would have a thousand rooms, according to present plans.

The voting will start Thursday morning.

The program which became available today, lists a number of high government officials as speakers and President Harding is expected to address the delegates at one of Monday's sessions. Secretary Hughes will speak Monday night.

ARTHUR MURRAY, AMERICAN EXTRAORDINARY, TEACHES WHOLE WORLD TO DANCE

ARTHUR MURRAY, WHO WITH THE AID OF UNCLE SAM, INSTRUCTS 100,000 PERSONS SCATTERED THROUGHOUT WORLD IN DANCING.

By EDWARD THIERRY
(Special to The Bee)

NEW YORK, April 16.—Arthur Murray, with the help of Uncle Sam, is teaching the whole world to dance.

One hundred thousand people have learned how, by mail, during the last six months. Of this immense class, 15,000 live abroad; thousands in Europe, hundreds in China and Japan, scores even in Egypt and South Africa, and so many in Australia that he had to open a branch office in Sydney.

Murray is only 28, yet he has built up a new industry that gives him a very large income. And he runs his international business on the side while he goes to college.

How did he do it? Here's the explanation given by Murray, who has written a series of six articles for The Bee on the newer dancing steps.

"When I was 24 everybody said my brains were all in my feet," he said. "Probably were, too, for I had a $100-a-week job teaching dancing at Castle House. Then I decided to go to college, and my family and friends told me I was crazy."

"I had educated feet, and I wanted an educated head, too. So I enrolled

LEARN TO DANCE IN SIX LESSONS

"Anybody can" is Arthur Murray's answer to the above question. He means YOU. Doubt it? Well, it's true, nevertheless! The Bee will have something very important to tell you about this tomorrow.

In the Georgia School of Technology at Atlanta. But I had thrown up my job, and I had to pay for my education as well as keep my three younger brothers in school.

"Organizing a dancing class is easy. I wanted more than that—something that would pay big. I had no money, but I had a theory that I could put my idea over by the power of suggestion and the use of psychology. I organized a dancing club rather than a school and made the lessons play rather than work."

"I started with 20 pupils, 10 members, of what I called the Club de Vingt. That gave it an air of exclusiveness—but it wasn't very exclusive in numbers, because my Atlanta school turned out to be the biggest in the world, with 100 children and 500 grown-ups! And I made $15,000 a year profit, and never missed classes at college, although my college work kept me busy all the time except two afternoons a week.

Critics said I couldn't teach children in large classes, but I showed them I could. Then I decided to tackle a new field, although I knew that many had failed in an effort to teach dancing by mail.

"I failed, too—at first. During the first two years I lost $20,000 in the mail campaign. But I stuck to college and last fall, with a new mail system, I started out to teach the world how to dance. And I put it over. Not more than one person in 5000 who takes the mail course in dancing writes back to ask questions that show difficulty in learning."

Murray now has a staff of 38 people. It keeps 20 girls busy answering his mail. His printing and mimeographing bills are enormous. He dictates all the lessons himself, writes books about dancing, invents new steps, and keeps in touch with dance fashions—and since January has been taking a post-graduate course at the Columbia University School of Business. His college classes keep him busy from 7:15 to 10:30 every night except Saturday and Sunday.

"STILL TIRED" when you get up?

Try this wonderful Spring blood tonic

Take Hood's Sarsaparilla as a spring medicine for that tired feeling, caused by thick, impure blood. Hood's makes you feel better, eat and sleep better, and "makes food taste good." After the inactivity and close indoor confinement of winter it is especially hard for the sluggish system to combat disease germs.

Hood's Sarsaparilla restores to the blood those properties which help to repel germs of grippe, influenza, fevers and other ailments. It gently stimulates and refreshes weary people who feel run-down. It has given satisfaction to three generations. Get a bottle today!

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

How to throw off that tired, listless feeling

S.S.S. makes you feel like yourself again

Generations ago, our forefathers made a "tea" every Spring from certain herbs and barks to purify the blood. Like wise, since 1826, such herbs and barks have been carefully selected, proportioned scientifically and prepared for that great blood purifier—S. S. S. To serve beneficially from one generation to another successfully is a guarantee of its effectiveness. The way we live and eat, we can't step from Winter into Spring without partying the blood; unless we choose to suffer depression, feel tired out, and have pimples and boils. It is so easy to give nature a little help, and the best sure way is to start with S. S. S. Stronger and more useful means depend on blood-purifier. S. S. S. will give you that greater endurance, energy, strength, and a more youthful appearance.

Mr. J. M. McRae, Los Angeles, Calif., writes: "Overwork consumed a complexion which consisted of a tired feeling and sores in the back, that finally overhauled all my strength. A friend advised me to take S. S. S. and after taking only several bottles I was entirely relieved."

Try it yourself. S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size is more economical. Get a bottle today!

Danville Women Help Form Club In Martinsville

The business and Professional Women's club of Danville lent its assistance to the State and National organizations in establishing a similar club in Martinsville Friday night when Miss Sallie Haskins, President of the Danville Club, also State Treasurer, Miss Maude Woodward, State Finance Chairman, and Misses Ruth Burch and Ellen Harvill, State members of the Publicity Committee of the Danville Club, motored with Mrs. J. K. Bowman, State President, to Martinsville, for that purpose.

The heavy storm in the early afternoon did not frighten the courage of these ladies, and the trip was made safely and in splendid time.

The party arrived in Martinsville about 8 o'clock, and after being entertained at supper at the Henry Hotel by Miss Louisa Carter, who holds a responsible position with the American Furniture Company in Martinsville, they met in the lecture room of the First Baptist Church a large and interested gathering of the representatives of the supporting women of the town, who had been called together by Miss Carter, with the assistance of others interested.

Mrs. J. K. Bowman was introduced by Miss Bessie Tuggle, and in her own fascinating and enthusiastic style explained the purposes and ideals of the National and State organizations, which she hoped to see localized in the formation of an organization of business and professional women in Martinsville.

She referred to the social and business advantages, which such a contact and interchange of experience would bring the recognition and prestige which would be accorded business women, and which she said, could be secured by the moral effect of such an organization; and also to the tangible force for good in the civic life of their town, in its broadest sense, which their united strength would present.

Miss Sallie Haskins followed with an outline of definite things accomplished by the Danville club, its influence in the city and its full cooperation with other local organizations. She heartily encouraged the formation of a club in Martinsville.

The audience listened with extreme interest to the ideas presented to them, and before adjournment formed an organization committee to meet early next week to perfect plans for permanent organization.

The party left Martinsville about ten o'clock, and while virtuously pursuing its homeward way along the muddy roads, suddenly confronted an impassable, which appeared to be several unoffending motor cars helplessly stuck in the mud, and a red light waving a friendly but vigorous warning to unsuspicious motorists to eschew danger. Not so.

With chagrin at first, and then amusement the occupants of the car found themselves in the clutches of the arbiters of the public morals. Not even the disarming meekness of Miss Maude Woodward on the front seat could lend respectability to the occasion. The distinguished President of the State Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, and her less distinguished but equally respectable companions, under the searchlight, but it must be said, courteous view of the minnows of the lake.

Being relieved the baggage of motorists, the party proceeded on its way, with the President of the State Federation stating that there was one man "he was not interested in playing and handling over to a woman—that of Prohibition Inspector.

Texas Beauty Wins Dancing Marathon

Magdalene Williams Calls It a Day After Stumbling All Around for 65 Hours.

HOUSTON, Texas, April 15.—Miss Magdalene Williams, a Texas beauty, having danced 65 hours and 30 minutes, ceased shuffling at about 3.08 p. m., today, called it a record and went home waiting to hear from others in Cleveland, New York, and Baltimore who aspire to be world champion long distance dancers. The record was made at the McMillan's Dancing academy here. 21 couples having set forth at 9:15 p. m. Thursday with a cast prize and a trip to New York as the goal for the best record.

Miss Williams, a winner also in a recent beauty contest, danced steadily through two days and three nights and the greater part of the third day, while couple after couple, unable to stand the pace, dropped out. To the very little exhaustion, and for a swan song she staged as lively a one-step as she did on the first night.

Three Houston dancers broke the world's record established at Baltimore Saturday when they continued dancing after 2:33 a. m. Sunday. Doctors prevailed on Miss Goldie Hughes to drop out shortly after 3 a. m. and leave the contest to Miss Williams and L. Kessler. At 2:21 p. m. Sunday Kessler was ruled off the floor as a result of his apparent inability to keep time to the music or to do any real dancing.

Miss Williams announced she would go on through to 9 p. m., making a 72-hour record. Doctors felt her pulse and offered no serious objections and the dance continued despite protests of the hall management. The young, Auburn-haired miss scorned all who advised her to quit, and apparently had plenty of vitality left, but a note from her parents prevailed and she consented to leave the floor at 3:08 p. m., after having been on it continually for 65 hours.

A waiting limousine carried her to a Turkish bath and then to her home and sleep. Hundreds packed the street as the car left the dance hall. Sunday onlookers crowded on the dance floor surrounding the last remaining couple. Police kept them back, while a violinist walked along, side playing the latest jazz, in unison with the orchestra at one end of the hall. Orchestra music was provided during the entire 65 hours and there was never an hour, day or night, when there were not hundreds of onlookers in the dance hall.

FIVE MEN AND FIVE WOMEN TRYING TO SMASH RECORD

CLEVELAND, April 15.—Five men and five women were dancing over a tile floor of a club room here tonight in an endeavor to establish an endurance dancing record.

Russell Brady who started yesterday morning at 8 o'clock, had been on the floor seven hours longer than his closest competitor, Miss Madalene Gottschick. They plan to dance at least 60 hours.

They were joined at 5 o'clock this morning by Andrew Rauson and Miss Margaret Howard. Three other contestants entered at noon and the eighth got on the floor at 7 o'clock tonight.

The contestants change partners frequently and are fed as they dance. All are equipped with pedometers attached to their ankles. These indicate that the dancers cover approximately a mile an hour.

Girl Scouts to Meet April 23

(Special to The Bee.)

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Poor girl of such—the needs of each will be discussed at the ninth annual convention of the National Council of Girl Scouts to be held here during the week of April 23.

Girls who come from homes that are troubled by financial difficulties probably will get the most consideration, but those who happily are born into families possessed with plenty have "difficulties" too which the scouts endeavor to correct.

The convention, which will be held at the Wardman Park Hotel will be preceded by a week of intensive training in scout leadership at the Manor Club just outside of Norbeck, Maryland.

Representatives from almost every large city in the United States will be present. There are 250 councils in the organization, but in many smaller cities there are no organized councils and many of this latter class of cities will be represented too. In all, 350,000 girls will be accounted for through delegates to the convention.

To Study Girl Life.

While the convention itself will be given over principally to a discussion of the training and development of the leaders directing the movements of their younger sisters, still attention will be paid to about every phase of the life of the adolescent girl.

On the 23rd, two informal sessions will be held for visiting delegates by the president and national officers one at the home of Mrs. Herbert Hoover wife of the secretary of commerce and the national president of the organization and the other at the home of Mrs. Adolph Miller.

The day following business of the week will get under way in earnest. Addresses will be made by Mrs. Arthur Osgood Choate, New York City; Mrs. Frank D. Holland of Atlanta; Miss Caroline Lewis of White Plains, N. Y.; Mrs. James I. Storrow of Boston and Dean Sarah Louise Arnold, head of the education department.

One of the most interesting topics to be discussed will be needs of scouts according to geographical sections. Delegates from California, New York, Florida and Minnesota will tackle the question.

There are about 200 girl scout camps in the country and some of the papers to be read will deal with possible improvement of these summer vacation places.

Another thing which is getting the serious thought of the scout executives is how leaders of the future may be developed, as it is thoroughly understood that the movement cannot continue to go forward unless real leaders are developed from the ranks of the scouts themselves.

On Thursday annual election will be held. Present incumbents are Mrs. Herbert Hoover, president; Mrs. Arthur Osgood Choate, Mrs. Julius Rosenberg of Chicago, Mrs. E. M. Swift, Colorado Springs, and Mrs. William F. Sumner, wife of the admiral, vice president; Mrs. Nicholas Brady, treasurer. Among those on the executive board are Mrs. Fredrick Edey, Miss E. Gwen Martin and Mrs. W. H. Scudder.

FAMOUS MAIL ROBBER HAS MADE GOOD HIS GETAWAY

ATLANTA, Ga., April 15.—For ten and it was this suit that Chapman days Federal and local officers have done as the nurse, Miss Coralia combined Clarke county for some time, stepped out of the room after the New York million dollar mail robbery, who escaped from the hospital here on April 4. A nation-wide hunt has been in progress but tonight finds Chapman still free and his hiding place a mystery.

Federal officers under Lewis J. Bailey, in charge of the Department of Justice agents, left here tonight that they were following a hot trail was denied. The indications were that Chapman has made a clean getaway through clever confederates and that the only hope of capturing him now is by mere chance.

That Chapman was well supplied with money when he made his daring break from the Athens Hospital is the belief of the officers working on the case. They believe that Dominick Didato and Abe Silverstein, arrested in New York City, and a woman whose identity has not been disclosed were the agents who supplied him with funds and engineered the escape.

The money used is believed to have come from Chapman's secreted wealth, gathered from his numerous daring robberies.

Following his escape from the Atlanta Federal Prison Chapman and his Pal Frank Gray attempted to bribe W. H. Edwards and his wife to secrete them in their home in Lakewood Heights, near the prison, offering $1,000 cash.

Refusal of the offer led to the kidnapping of Edwards, he being carried away in an automobile with the hands of his wife and children. Mrs. Edwards' life was threatened if she told officers of their whereabouts.

The authorities are investigating Chapman's first escape from the Athens Hospital. They have asked Deputy Sheriff McCarthy, the guard who he carried an extra suit of clothing to the hospital. It was in a. p.

The Grand Jury which has been investigating the escape examined the Deputy and the nurse. The nurse said that Chapman's temperature was 100 degrees ten minutes before his escape was discovered. She considered he was too weak to get away without assistance. Confederates had an automobile she believed.

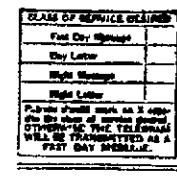

While many witnesses have been examined by the Grand Jury, it is stated that the investigation is far from complete and will be re-opened when the Federal Court convenes here again on April 23. Jesse Bennett, taxi cab driver, has admitted that he drove the car used by Didato and Silverstein when they came here on April 4, but the officers have been unable to connect him with the escape of the prisoner. Didato and Silverstein conveyed the impression that they were dig addicts who desired to consult a specialist with a view of curing them of the habit. Federal officers say Didato served a year in the Atlanta Penitentiary for selling parolles.

Didato and Silverstein, federal officers believe, were a part of the machine which brought about the escape of Chapman. Didato and Silverstein registered at the Georgian Hotel here and did not try to keep under cover. But the escape of Chapman took place a few minutes before they appeared at the railroad station and asked for tickets for New York at once.

MORE MEASLES REPORTED

JUST A SHADOW, WEAK AND NERVOUS

Kentucky Lady Says That She Was In a Bad Condition, But Took Cardui With Great Benefit.

Ashland, Ky.—Mrs. Cora Newcom, of this city, says: "Sometime ago I began suffering with womanly weakness and was in a very bad condition. My trouble was weakness and nervousness. I was just a shadow—I didn't weigh but a hundred pounds. I was so nervous I couldn't rest nor sleep. I didn't have an appetite, in fact, did not want to eat. I just dragged around—seemed like I couldn't lift my feet."

"I heard of Cardui as a good tonic and I began to use it. I can't begin to tell how I improved. After six bottles I was like a different person. I worked and enjoyed life. I began to sleep heartily, sleep well, and weighed 150 pounds."

"I certainly can recommend Cardui. I also used it during my pregnancy and it gave me strength and relieved the tired, weak feeling in my back. At the season of the year when I was suffering from female ailments, have taken Cardui with good results. Perhaps you, too, may need it. Why not try it? It may be just what you need."

GAS

In the stomach is a common disorder causing much discomfort.

Gas inflates the stomach, forcing it to crowd the heart and makes it beat irregularly. The lungs are crowded and because they cannot properly expand the patient often takes a deep breath to get enough oxygen. These and other distressing symptoms are warnings that digestion is impaired and needs attention. Remember for every effect, there is a cause. Let us explain how.

Board of Directors Hold Meeting.

The Board of Directors of the Young Women's Christian Association held their regular monthly meeting on Friday afternoon, April 13th, with Mrs. D. Keen, president of the Association, presiding. Reports were given by the Standing Committees, General Secretary, Industrial Secretary and Girls' Work Secretary. All reports showed marked growth and development in all departments of the work with an encouraging outlook. The scope of the work has grown to such proportions that the need for more adequate space grows each day. This was stressed by the Board. Other matters of much importance were discussed at the meeting.

Industrial Department Activities.

The Industrial Committee entertained the Girls Industrial Club on Friday evening. The evening was a very full one for the Club. Supper was served at six o'clock, then followed the recreation period. A short business meeting was later held and refreshments were served by the Industrial Committee. The Industrial Department is getting out small folders which contain the dates of night, camping parties and other out-of-door features for the Spring and early Summer. These folders will be widely distributed among the girls in the industries and in the business offices.

The banquet to be given by the Girls Industrial Club on April 20th has been postponed until Friday, April 27th. This will be an employment banquet since the girls are to transfer as their guests representatives of the various firms by which they are employed.

The Industrial Girl's Club is actively interested in the "Register-Bee" contest. Mrs. Virginia Lewis, president of the club and an active member of the club now, is one of the contestants. The entire club is bending every effort to support Mrs. Lewis in the contest. Should Mrs. Lewis be fortunate enough to win one of the coveted prizes the club will share the good fortune.

The week-end Sectional Conference held in Roanoke was much enjoyed by the Danville delegation. Six girls from the Industrial Club and one from the Business Girls' Council attended the conference. Groups from Lynchburg and Roanoke together with the Danville group met to discuss questions as well as different club problems. Miss Beulah Haines of the Danville delegation was elected chairman of the conference. One of the outstanding features of the conference was a suggestion that the Industrial Department of the Y. W. C. A. merge the younger girls of the Association in the Girl Reserves group to attend school as long as possible.

A large number of girls of the Association in the Girl Reserves group to attend school as long as possible. A school term if they could, leaving the school to do with a Roanoke girl and to do with a course in "citizenship" and social legislation. The thoughts brought out in this course were most helpful, giving the girls a clear idea of our state and national government and when they are living, and also a better understanding of the laws of their state and nation. A girl can be much more intelligent citizen if she is familiar with these things.

Business Girls' Council. The Business Girls' Council had an unusually large attendance at their weekly club supper a few days ago. "Daddy Long-Legs" continues to be the topic of conversation. The club has been asked to repeat the play out of town and plans are being made to give "Daddy Long-Legs" in one of the near by towns in the near future.

Girl Reserves Entertain. The Student Girl Reserves had its installation service on Saturday evening and later entertained the Girl's Work Committee.

Sunday "Drop-In" Service. The Girls Industrial Club and the Business Girls' Council are to be hostesses on Sunday afternoon at the "Drop-In" service. The recent conference delegates to Roanoke will have charge of the program. Mrs. Gertrude Bragg, of the Girls Industrial Club will preside. Miss Beulah Haines of the Business Girls' Council will give the general theme of the conference. Miss Celia Dodson, Mrs. Cuma Williams, Miss Mabel Cole and Miss Miss Minnie Eanes, all conference delegates will have a part in the program. Miss Pearl Gosney will play several violin selections accompanied by Miss Walker Sneed. Refreshments will be served by the Religious Work Committee. A cordial invitation is extended to every girl in Danville to attend this interesting

Tells Why He Gave Away Fortune

BY EDWARD THURRY
NEA Service Staff Writer

MIDDLEBORO, Mass., April 16.—Charles Garland, hermit millionaire, has broken his silence. For the first time he has told why he gave away his fortune "for the benefit of mankind." $250,000 for distribution in gifts and loans through the American Fund for Public Service.

These questions were asked Garland.

Why did you first refuse your inheritance?

"How have your views changed since?"

"Do you think it justifiable to live on unearned or inherited income?"

"What is your general attitude toward private property?"

Garland's answers are made public for the first time exclusively through NEA Service. They come simultaneously with an attack on the Garland fund by Samuel Compers, president of the American Federation of Labor, charging that the money is being used for the revolutionary movement in America, and publication for the first time of the activities of the fund established last July.

Here is the personal written story of the one-time millionaire who lives on a barren 30-acre farm near Middleboro, where he is establishing a community to carry out his idea of socialized property rights.

BY CHARLES GARLAND.

I GREW up among those who did not question the justice of private ownership, and I went to school and college where the injustices of the present economic system—great wealth beside great poverty—were explained away through the argument that everyone has a fair chance to earn a living.

I saw from my own observation that this argument was false and that it was put forth by those who wanted to justify their own positions rather than to face the facts honestly.

I wished to clear myself of all the privileges of wealth and all desire for those privileges that I might be free to see the truth.

I did not then dispose of the money because I saw no way of doing good with it. The inheritance was a part of the economic system which I wanted to destroy. It was the fruit of the spirit of greed as opposed to the spirit of co-operation for which I felt I must

WHERE GARLAND MONEY GOES.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Gifts totaling $24,985 and loans aggregating $107,450 (of which $25,750 was repaid by Jan. 1) were made during the first six months out of the $250,000 placed by Charles Garland in the hands of the American Fund for Public Service.

The report, made by Secretary Roger N. Baldwin, discloses that Garland's other resources "were also put in trust for social uses, even including the little farm on which he lives, so that he has now literally nothing of his own."

Secretary Baldwin denies Samuel Compers' charges that the fund corporation is allied with revolutionary groups. Beneficiaries are described as "pioneering enterprises in labor and radical movements," loans being made to 49 organizations out of 167 which applied other requests including 148 requests for personal aid, chiefly from farmers and inventors. Money used was as follows:

Strike relief $2,000
Education 6,500
Legislative campaigns 3,865
Publicity and publications 3,820
Educational propaganda 7,900
Legal defense work 900

Strike relief $25,000
Education 9,000
Publicity and publications 34,250
Legal defense work 10,500
Research 7,000
Miscellaneous 1,700

work. I felt that I could do most toward bringing a new spirit into human relations by refusing to use it—by regarding nothing as my private property and by having nothing to do with the legal machinery of private property.

Since then I have come to feel that the ownership of simple necessities of life—of food clothing and tools for working—in no way conflicts with the spirit of co-operation, provided that one owns things to use them for social purposes and not to deny the use of them to others.

As for living on unearned or inherited income, I believe that only one thing matters—that one strive to do good with what resources one has.

Unearned wealth is all wealth, should be used for the benefit of society.

CHARLES GARLAND, HERMIT MILLIONAIRE, AND THE HOUSE MORE THAN A CENTURY OLD WHICH IS THE CENTER OF HIS MASSACHUSETTS FARM COMMUNITY.

city as a whole. It is created by society. No individual himself created great wealth. Those who have amassed large fortunes have reaped the labor of others. All income on loaned money is derived from the labor of others, although the one receiving the income may never come in contact with those who are actually providing the wealth which is turned over to him. Anyone who sincerely wants to use his or her wealth for social purposes will find a way. Where the way is lacking the will is lacking.

Ideas of private property so fill our minds that it is difficult to look the world in the face and take it for what it is. Ask the average working man why he is doing the work he is. Almost always he will reply, "To Make Money."

And here is the root of the whole problem. He is working to propitiate the god of the day, ownership. Man will not see that he is his own master no matter what god he invents to symbolize his own authority. Men are enslaved not by property, not by economic laws, or by material obstacles too great to overcome, but by their own ideas by their false conception of the forces with which they have to deal.

When man becomes conscious of his authority, he will no longer be tied to sell his plighted—the right to choose his own destiny. He will not do a day's work to "make money." He will do it because he feels that it is sensible and useful work—because he is proud of the plan which he himself has conceived and which he is fulfilling with every hour of his work.

There is nothing that stands in the way of sensible expenditure of money so much as does the possession of too much money. And the longer you have it, the harder it is to see straight.

RARE TREAT FOR GARDEN LOVERS

The Danville Garden Club which, for the past few years has devoted its labors to creating a larger community interest in gardening, last night announced the showing of one hundred stereoscopic colored pictures of the finest rose gardens in America, at the Majestic theatre next Sunday at four o'clock. In making the announcement it was pointed out that the Garden Club is doing this for the double purpose of affording an opportunity of seeing the horticultural wonders of the country, and to swell the fund which is being raised for the purpose of beautifying the grounds of Hilltop sanatorium which have been developed since the institution was erected and occupied.

J. C. Hester, willingly consented for the use of the Majestic free of charge for the showing of the colored pictures which were shown before the National Horticultural Society in New York and which have been widely commented on wherever shown. Superintendent W. L. Griggs of the city schools will offer explanations of the pictures as they are shown. During the showing of the slides a collection will be taken for the Hilltop planting fund. One section of the gallery will be reserved for colored people. No admission for colored people.

The Danville Garden Club expects to retain the services of a landscape artist to come here and make recommendations for the beautifying of the grounds in Hilltop and before Summer it is hoped that a great improvement will have been wrought.

CHOOSING A CONSORT IS HARD TASK FOR PRINCE.

BY SELFRIDGE HANNAGAN

(Special Correspondence.)

LONDON, April 14.—In clubs, in restaurants, in railway trains, in all places where Englishmen meet and talk the question is asked: "When is the Prince of Wales going to marry, and whom is he to marry?" These questions when they are printed are not as impertinent and vulgar as they might appear to be, for after all the question of the marriage of the heir to the British throne is a matter in which every subject of the King, whether in this country or throughout the Empire, has to a certain extent a legitimate interest.

Gossip and rumor have found several possible brides for the Prince of Wales during the past few years. Some of these have been foreign ladies of royal rank; one has been an English princess and a cousin of the Prince. Another has been the daughter of an English duke. There is no harm in mentioning her name—it was Lady Rachel Cavendish, daughter of the Duke of Devonshire. The strongest rumor, however, mentioned Lady E. Bouverie-Lyon.

These reports are the inevitable result of the Prince of Wales remaining a bachelor and a girl of royal rank is almost certain that but for the war the Prince of Wales would by this time have been married to a foreign royalty, and married possibly in accordance with his own inclination.

There is a general idea that the war has broken down the convention that the Heir Apparent should of necessity marry a girl of royal rank. It is now considered that he is quite free to marry the daughter of a subject of his father, and that if he did elect to make the daughter of an English duke or countess a marriage would be a very popular one.

This is true; but the difficulties in the way of the Prince marrying outside royalty are greater than many outsiders suppose them to be. One of the difficulties that has stood in the way of the Heir Apparent marrying outside the ranks of royalty is that between a duke and the King or Heir Apparent there exists a social gulf so vast that were the Prince of Wales to marry the daughter of a duke his wife would find herself of necessity placed so much above her nearest relatives in rank that her position could not but be disagreeable to her and to them.

That is one of the difficulties in the way of the Prince marrying outside royalty, and the war has not in reality removed it.

The dignity of the throne to a considerable extent, according to conventional conception, depends upon maintaining royalty as a separate caste. In the royal household members of the family are always spoken of as "royals," and all those brought into immediate contact with royalty are distinguished by the title of "royal," a distinction which separates "royals" from those of lesser rank.

Some Englishmen consider that the removal of that line might be detrimental to the best interests of the throne.

The idea that by marrying the daughter of the head of one of the most ancient and honorable of English families, the Prince of Wales, his Royal Highness would strengthen the position of the monarchy is at least open to doubt. It is certain that such a marriage would be popular at the moment, but in the long run it might not make for the stability of the throne.

The King's Burden.
The fact remains, however, that the Prince of Wales would be married to marry. King Edward was married before he had reached the age of twenty-three; the Prince of Wales has passed his twentieth birthday, and is now a bachelor, and the opinion that he ought to make a choice is becoming more articulate.

What the opinion of the King and Queen is upon the matter, as far as there is an imminence to inquire, but there is one fact in this connection that is worth mentioning.

Their Majesties, after all, are but human, and with their long reigns they have reached a period in their lives when they might fairly expect to be relieved of a portion of the burden—and indeed also of the expense—of some of their social duties.

In the usual course of events the Prince and Princess of Wales would now be the chief host and hostess in the country, and their home would be the chief center of society.

Necessity of a Wife.
As a bachelor, the Prince finds it practically impossible to entertain except on the most limited scale. Of his personal popularity is not a doubt. His circle of personal friends is probably as wide as that of the late King at his age, but King Edward at the Prince's age was married and was contented with a very considerable scale both at Marlborough House and Sandringham.

It is a natural function of the heir and no one would discharge the duty with greater success than the Heir Apparent, but without a Princess it is a role he cannot, unfortunately, assume to any great extent. The fact is that a bachelor Heir Apparent is almost an anomaly.

In no position a man can occupy is a wife more necessary to him than she is to the eldest son of the sovereign. The performance of all his social and other duties is hampered and rendered difficult by the absence of a wife.

Admitting, then, the necessity of the Prince of Wales getting married, why should he not, if he pleases, choose a foreign lady of royal rank? Why should such a union be unpopular?

The argument put forward against the Prince marrying a foreign princess is that in existing circumstances it would be difficult for him to find a foreign princess who had not been brought up in the Roman Catholic religion, necessitating a change of religion on her side.

Well, when the King of Spain married Princess Ena Victoria of Battenberg, she had to change her religion, but the fact did not make the union unpopular in Spain, and neither did it in any way unhappily one.

Let it be frankly admitted that in monarchical countries the sovereign or his heir, when he married, may have to look to a foreign country for a bride. If popular opinion will not let him do this, then popular opinion ought not to object to his remaining a bachelor, the Prince's friends say.

If the Prince of Wales is to marry a lady of royal rank he must be free to look outside this country for a bride or else marry one of his cousins, and that would be to give him a very limited choice.

The heir to the British throne is fortunately quite above the need of looking for a well-dowered bride. His income from the Duchy of Cornwall is considerable, and he has previously been able to pay a considerable sum during the past ten years, for he lives by no means extravagantly.

He will, of course, have heavy drains on his purse when he takes to himself a wife and begins to live in a manner befitting his high position, but he will be well able to stand the strain financially.

MILLION YEAR OLD MAN

Two interesting discoveries were announced in one day recently. From Athens, by way of France, came an announcement that a certain well-known star has suddenly increased at least ten times the flood of light and heat it pours over the universe.

From the other side of the world, South America, the cables jolted us with the message that a million-year-old human skull has been found in the Patagonian Andes.

The mental life of modern man is getting portentous. We opened our dailies one day with a score of questions on our lips—the Ruhr, Angola, Dublin, Charlie Chaplin, and so on. And on top of the answer to these questions we had a message of a colossal conflagration broadcasted from a thousand billion miles away as a message from the strange dead world of a million years ago.

Let us take the human discovery first. Frankly, we must speak of it with reserve. Professor Boas, who is a distinguished authority on primitive man, with a cave at one of the great American universities, Columbia, stands sponsor for it. He says that Dr. J. G. Wolf has seen and identified this ancient skull. Dr. Wolf is a trained geologist of the Canadian Survey, a very able box of men. For two years he has been exploring in Brazil for the great national museum. And he says that he has seen a human skull which was found by a geologist in what a geologist calls "Tertiary sandstone."

Quite certainly that would be the oldest skull known to science. It is vaguely described as of the familiar, brutal type, with low sloping brow, but the essence of the matter is that it is said to have been found in a "Tertiary" rock. Let us see what this means.

In the early days of geology the story of the earth was divided into three periods or eras—the Primary, the Secondary, and the Tertiary. Our modern knowledge makes this division too small, but keep it only as a very, very long "preface"—perhaps fifty million years or more—and a long "appendix." The latter, roundly a matter of about half a million years, is the human period, the period of the great Ice Age and afterwards.

Now amongst scientific men it has long been a burning question whether any human remains or implements were buried in the Tertiary Era. What it means, in plainer English, is: Was man here before the great Ice Age?

We see quite clearly today that in a recent geological period the earth suffered for ages in a vast mantle of ice and snow. Before that the climate even of our part of the world, was so warm that the rhinoceros and hippopotamus flourished in streams, herds of elephants roamed over the broad green plain which is now the North Sea, and troops of monkeys made merry in trees. Was man already on the scene?

A good many of the comments on the alleged discovery in Patagonia are miles astray. In science we have never had any doubt that man, or semi-man, existed in the Tertiary. Sir Bertram Windle was reported in the English Press as saying in Canada that the fair-clad, gibbering ape man of popular belief was a myth.

More over, only within the last few weeks it has been agreed by all the authorities that man must be well over a million years old. Fully-developed, man-like apes, his cousins, existed two million years ago. Moreover, only within the last few weeks it has been definitely decided, by a weighty international commission, that certain implements found near Ipswich, England, are "Tertiary."

This is not in the least news to us, that man is a million years old. But we had hitherto no bones of Tertiary man, and particularly, no trace of him in America.

If the discovery is sound it will harmonize with our knowledge. For years we have admitted that very early man probably crossed from Europe to America by land, which then united the two continents, via Iceland and Greenland. It was in the general days before the Ice Age. The Yahi-gans of Terra del Fuego seem to be a shivering remnant of this early race, driven south by the Amerinds, who came in via Alaska.

That does not sound much, but let us again translate this astronomical Greek and Latin into plain English. Our sun gives out every second as much heat as we would get by burning 11,000 billion tons of coal. Suppose something happened to raise the temperature as far as our planet is concerned ten times as much heat. Our oceans and snowfields would go in a jiffy. The torrid heat would scorch up all life on this or any other planet. Our oceans would evaporate at appalling speed.

But we are not interested in the ice and the oceans. If the sun covered its youth in this way, all life would be doomed within a thousand million miles of it.

What is what is happening in "The Whale," just down below our southern horizon. Of course, it is nothing new. It is a very mild version of a "new star," such as appears constantly. In these the blaze may increase hundreds of times in a day! All that is new is that we have not before seen a well-known and bright star suddenly go on "magnificent."

What does it mean? That is the real interesting part of it. It may mean either of two things: an internal explosion or a sort of collision. We now know that there is tremendous energy locked up in heavy metals like uranium and a gigantic release of it some day in the bowels of a star or a planet is quite conceivable.

But more probably the star has run, perhaps at fifty miles a second, into a cloud of cosmic dust. We know now that space abounds in these minute stretches of gas or finely-powdered matter. They may be a million times thinner than cigar-smoke, but they are so vast that a star traveling through them at fifty or a hundred miles a second will have its temperature enormously raised by the friction.

DR. F. H. GAINES OF AGNES SCOTT DIES SUDDENLY

(By The Associated Press)
ATLANTA, April 14.—The body of Dr. Frank Henry Gaines, founder and president of Agnes Scott College, Decatur, who died suddenly today, will be taken to the state capital early tomorrow morning where it will lie in state throughout Sunday. It was announced tonight.
The funeral will be held from the Decatur Presbyterian Church, of which he was pastor for a number of years, at 10 o'clock Monday morning. Burial in West View Cemetery, Atlanta, will follow.
As the body of the widely known educator is carried into the capital it will pass between lines of students from Agnes Scott College who will assemble to honor their late leader.
Dr. Gaines, who was 71 years old, had performed his duties at the college through Wednesday and made his last formal appearance before the student body Wednesday morning at chapel services. Thursday he became slightly ill and came to Atlanta from Decatur on a trolley to consult physicians. Later in the day he entered the sanatorium where he died today because of the nature of his illness had been determined. The immediate cause of death, the physicians stated, was heart failure.
Surviving Dr. Gaines are his widow, one son, Dr. L. M. Gaines, Atlanta physician and a brother living in Washington.
Dr. Gaines was born in Joliet, Illinois, Monroe County, Tennessee, and was graduated from Cumberland University. After spending some time in missionary work in his home state, he entered the Union Theological Seminary in Virginia, from which he was graduated with the degree of bachelor of divinity in 1876. He was married to Miss Lewis, of Augusta County, Virginia, in 1876 and held pastorate at Knoxville, Clintonville, Hebron and Falling Springs, Virginia, until he accepted a call to the Decatur, Ga., Church in 1888.
Dr. Gaines distinguished himself for work in raising educational standards of southern colleges. He was the author of several books on education and religion.

Comptroller Has Laid Down the Law To Chief of Navy

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, April 14.—J. R. McCarl of Nebraska, who two years ago unostentatiously took up the duties of the newly created office of comptroller general of the United States today laid down the law to Secretary Denby in support of his claim that even cabinet officers must bow before the authority of his office in fiscal affairs.
At the same time, Secretary Denby prepared to take to the Attorney General for an opinion the question how far the authority of the comptroller general legally extends into the administrative workings of the Navy Department. Many naval officers and enlisted men have complained, Navy Department officials said, Mr. McCarl had in effect, overruled formal naval orders.
Mr. McCarl's action constituting a warning to all government departments that he intends to force strict compliance with the law in the expenditure of public money, became known through a letter he addressed to the Navy Secretary in which he asserted that so long as he ruled on matters within his jurisdiction, his authority, under the law, could be questioned by no official of the executive branch of the government. Provisions of the budget act in which the office of comptroller general was created, say specifically that he, as head of the general accounting office, may exercise his authority "without direction from any other officer."
The controversy over Mr. McCarl's authority came to a head through a protest by Secretary Denby against the comptroller's ruling in a minor case involving the overpayment of an enlisted man. Mr. McCarl instructed the Navy Department disbursing officer to get the money back.
Secretary Denby opposed the action, as interference within his department, and Mr. McCarl sent a letter which informed the Navy Secretary in part as follows:
"There was no authority in such administrative powers as are given the head of the Navy Department to issue an order annulling a request of this office to protect the fiscal affairs of the United States and which might jeopardize such recovery (of government money) as the action appears to have been in this case."
Mr. Denby's objection to activities of the comptroller general was not his first, nor the first that had reached the general accounting office from the other departments of the government and backed by the best counsel in his department, he appeared today to be determined to stand down.
Informed of the reported intention of the Navy Chief, Mr. McCarl declared he had no thought of abandoning his position.
"I conceive it to be the duty of every administrative officer," the comptroller general wrote Mr. Denby, "to facilitate action to protect the interests of the United States when matters arise involving erroneous or even doubtful payments."
This office must perform the duties imposed upon it by law and will undertake promptly to recover back over payments made by disbursing officers of the Navy Department or any other branch of the government in such a manner as will best conserve the interests of the United States. It must take such action in the accounts involved as the facts presented may require."
Mr. McCarl also informed Mr. Denby, however, that if it would be his assistance the comptroller's office hereafter would send instructions to the Secretary of the Navy rather than to the persons directly involved. The secretary, it was explained, could then issue the instructions as formal orders. It was pointed out, however, that the officer issuing orders either in the war or navy departments could by law be held strictly responsible for them and to that extent the suggestion, if carried out, might serve to narrow the controversy to the two government officers. Whether an "open war" will continue between the two seemed to be unlikely although Mr. McCarl's determination to stand his ground did not promise an early compromise. The law provides that the comptroller's fifteen year appointment is subject to termination only by Congressional action and Mr. McCarl's supporters refer tonight to reports by Congressional Committees which stated the budget measure which says, in substance, that Congress desired that it alone should control the purse heat of federal expenditure and therefore the comptroller general was made responsible to Congress alone. Secretary Denby prior to his retirement as Interior Department head encountered the positive stand of the comptroller general on several occasions. It was recalled and half a dozen instances where his decisions had caused a furor among army officers were mentioned. None of these cases, however, developed into controversies of the character of that between Mr. Denby and Mr. McCarl and the discussion tonight appeared to be the issue he fought out between these two.

May Try Illinois Governor Again!

BY ROY GIBBONS
(Special to The Bee.)

WAUKESHA, Ill., April 16.—Gov. Len Small, acquitted here last summer on charges of conspiracy to defraud the state of interest on public funds, may be compelled to face trial again under the same charges despite the constitutional provision which forbids placing anyone in jeopardy more than once for the same offense.

This is the opinion of State's Attorney A. V. Smith, now pushing a grand jury probe into the alleged plot to bribe members of the panel which returned a "not guilty" verdict for Small after months of trial which cost taxpayers thousands of dollars.

Smith bases his statement, he says, on the probable outcome of a case now before the Supreme court which will decide once and for all whether any defendant may be twice tried for the same crime provided the existence of fraud at his first hearing can be proved.

17 Charges.

So far the investigation has resulted in indictment of three men. Each is specifically accused in voluminous true bills on 17 counts including: Conspiracy to obstruct justice. Conspiracy to bribe a juror. Conspiracy to do an unlawful act. Conspiracy to have a juror answer questions. Conspiracy to have a juror qualified.

Those indicted are: John Blinn, Field, a juror in the Small trial and Antioch (Ill.) village hero and baseball player, who was appointed deputy state game warden following the governor's acquittal. Eddie Courtney, alleged by Chicago police to have a court record. Eddie Kaufman, Chicagoan, recently arrested while allegedly heading a convoy of beer runners and now under federal indictment also.

Another man, William J. Riley, Antioch (Ill.) saloonkeeper, is being held as a state witness, accused of having received $1,000 from Chicago "fixers," of which he paid $350 to Field and held out on the balance.

The indictments charge that Courtney and Kaufman did the "fixing," and that Field accepted the bribe. Kaufman is the only defendant who has been taken into custody up to date. His $5,000 bail was signed by Russell E. Edwards, a brother of Judge Charles C. Edwards, who presided over Governor Small's trial.

One excerpt of the lengthy indictments charges:
"That one John B. Field was by corrupt agreement and corrupt promise to pay a bribe in money and promise of remunerative employment, made to him and agreed upon by him, corruptly based and partial to said Len Small, and did qualify to serve as a fair and impartial juror in this cause."

That Edward Kaufman, known as E. Morrison, and Edward Courtney, known as E. Morgan, did conspire to obstruct and impede the course of justice and did unlawfully and feloniously conspire with divers persons whose names are unknown to this grand jury, did knowingly conceal from the court and the counsel in said trial the corruption and bias of the said John B. Field, and did knowingly bring about a verdict of not guilty of the said Len Small without regard to the evidence, and did bribe a juror in the proceedings to be paid thereafter $500.

Small calls it a plot. Governor Small brands the probe as a "further wicked attempt to be smirch my reputation for political reasons."

He charges that Attorney General Brandage, with whom he has long been at loggerheads, as being one of the many forces behind the investigation.

State's Attorney Smith says that the probe has "only begun," and that by the time all the evidence is in "many sensational bombshells will be exploded" by the testimony to be taken around the last of April when the grand jury is scheduled to resume its hearings in the case.

SOCIAL HELD AT WHITE HOUSE

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, April 14.—The first social function of any importance since Mrs. Harding's illness last fall was held tonight at the White House, the president and Mrs. Harding entertaining informally about 100 friends in official and unofficial life. The guests included the members of the cabinet and supreme court, several members of the Senate and House and a few representatives of the diplomatic corps. The affair was most informal, the president and Mrs. Harding greeting and chatting with their guests as they arrived. The whole party then gathered in the east room to see an advance showing of a motion picture dealing with the Americanization problem.

YANCEYVILLE NEWS

YANCEYVILLE, N. C., April 14.—The Spring weather of the last few weeks has brought renewed activity in road building in this section. The Yanceyville-Graham state highway which has been under construction for more than a year will in all probability be completed by the first of July. The part of this road already completed is in exceptionally fine piece of work both as to engineering and construction. It crosses the County Line hills whose ruggedness has heretofore been a barrier to road construction, but now where once were impassable hills and rocks lies this beautiful road traversed on either side with delightful scenery. The work on the new state highway leading out by Locust Hill is moving on rapidly. The Port Construction Company has the contract on this road. The survey is now being made for the road from Yanceyville to Prospect Hill and Roxboro, but it is not known when the contract for this project will be let. The work on the county roads is being pushed now with increasing interest.

Mrs. E. F. Upchurch, B. S. Graves, Fred Harrellson and T. H. Florence visited friends in Yanceyville Thursday afternoon.

County Agricultural Agent, J. L. Dove, reports that very probably as much as two thousand acres of cotton will be planted in Caswell county this Spring. Some cotton was grown last year with such success that interest has grown rapidly in the growing of more cotton this year.

P. T. Dodson is confined to his room this week with a severe attack of rheumatism.

"Current Events" and History of the Wednesday Club" was the subject chosen for last week's lecture which was given by Mrs. W. T. Harris, and which was full of interest to all club members.

Mrs. Harris, being one of the charter members of the club, spoke with feeling and pride of the advancement which had been made in the three decades of the club's existence. Founded in October 1893 by Miss Augusta Yates, with twelve members, its object being literary improvement, the club has grown to an active membership of one hundred and twenty-five, with a fixed purpose expressed in its motto, "All that's human must retrograde if it does not advance," which purpose has been demonstrated in both civic and national, as well as in club activities.

The following ladies composed the "Current Events" and History of the Wednesday Club" was the subject chosen for last week's lecture which was given by Mrs. W. T. Harris, and which was full of interest to all club members.

HELD FOR DEATH OF M'LACHLAN

(By The Associated Press)
STANFORD, Va., April 14.—John Anderson, local automobile salesman, was arrested tonight in connection with the death today of Peter Watson-McLachlan, 37, sales manager for a local garage, from injuries inflicted last night when a car driven by Anderson crashed into a buggy. Anderson's arrest came at the conclusion of a coroner's investigation, the jury holding that Anderson was intoxicated. McLachlan's body will be buried here tomorrow. He is survived by a widow and two children.

DUKE OF YORK'S WIFE WILL HAVE SUMPTUOUS WARDROBE AND JEWELS

(By The Associated Press)
LONDON, April 14.—When Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon takes up her abode with the Duke of York after the wedding on April 26, she will have one of the "most sumptuous wardrobes in the world as well as a wealth of priceless jewels and enough furniture and gifts to fill a dozen houses."

Monies of New York, Paris, London, Rome and even far off Australia are contributing their skill in creation of the bride's trousseau which some persons say is richer than that which was prepared for Princess Mary. The Duke of York already has 65 gowns and a endless variety of tea, evening and sport frocks, as well as sumptuous furs and hats.

Rare and handsome gifts to the value of tens of thousands of dollars continue to pour in upon the bride and bridegroom. Even Americans and Canadians are remembering the couple as evidence of their friendship and good wishes. On her wedding day the bride will wear a superb wreath of orange blossoms, the gift of the Canadian Club of Florida. It is now being packed for shipment to New York on the last boat that could bring it here before the marriage.

The most costly of the gifts is a series of pearls and diamond necklaces of unrivaled beauty and a wedding ring of pure Australian gold which have been bestowed on Lady Elizabeth by the Duke.

Most unusual of all the presents, however, is a remarkable clock, which in addition to showing the hours, minutes and seconds in the usual way, also indicates the day of the week and of the month and the phases of the moon. After striking each hour it plays a march. On the dial is a representation of White Hall while features of the King and Queen and all the members of the royal family pass around in a gay procession.

As becomes a Scottish clock, no marches are played on Sunday, nor is there a procession. These actions are automatically stopped on the Sabbath.

The clock is the gift of the City of Glasgow. It was made in 1804 for King George III and is one of the finest mechanical pieces ever produced in Scotland.

Another novel gift is an illuminated address of congratulations from 40,000 boys of the Young Men's Christian Association. Fourteen huge wedding cakes have already presented to the bride, and another is en route from Montreal.

The privy council as yet made no decision as to the future position of the bride, but it is believed that the King is reserving this as a surprise and that he will confer a royal title upon her on the day of the wedding.

King George is now selecting the hymns to be sung at the ceremony in Westminster Abbey. One of those especially favored is "The King of Love My Shepherd Is."

It is understood that the first part of the honeymoon will be spent in a mansion about thirty miles from London, use of which has been offered by its owners, Mrs. Greville, a friend of the royal family. The couple will later go to Glamis Castle, the bride's home.

During the past week Lady Elizabeth has been endeavoring to obtain suitable servants for her household. As far as is possible she desires that

Rain Prevented Game Saturday

It was learned yesterday that Pitcher Twombly has been bought outright by the Danville Club instead of having been secured through an optional agreement. Twombly was one of the leading pitchers of the Piedmont League last year and will greatly strengthen the local club.

Another new comes the sad news. At the very moment that Herb Murphy thought that he had traded Caviness for Bill Allen the trade fell through, when Manager Duncan of Raleigh refused to sign on the dotted line. Duncan had already agreed to the trade and then reneged. Allen would have greatly helped the local club but his services are not indispensable; there are other fish in the sea, and Murphy thinks he has the right bait. It is true, moreover, that Murphy has been successful in getting together a very strong aggregation. The ball club, as it stands, does not look like a time to come for the game. However, he has scheduled two games with this team for next Friday and Saturday.

Next Wednesday the Tobaccoists will go to Houston to meet a semi-pro team composed of Houston, Scotsburg, Brookneal and South Boston players. It is rumored that this club has a splendid pitcher to use against Danville.

The pink slips were handed to three Yannisians yesterday. These were Pitchers Fowler and Cardinal, and Outfielder Schulte.

RICHARDS ADDS 2 MORE TITLES

(By The Associated Press)
PINEHURST, April 14.—Vincent Richards, youthful tennis star, added two more titles to his string today when he captured the North and South singles trophy from S. Howard Voshell, and then, paired with that opponent, helped take the doubles match from Josiah Wheelwright and Raymond Bidwell, both of Boston. Richards won the singles matches was not an easy one. After winning the first set 6-3, he dropped the second with score reversed. The third he squeezed out at 6-4, after Voshell had made the score four all by winning three straight games. The men's doubles also was well fought. Richards and Voshell dropped the second set of their five set match with Wheelwright and Bidwell and then won the third after going to deuce at 7-5. They finished the match with the fourth set at 6-3.

FOUR BANDITS ARE REPULSED; ONE IS KILLED

(By The Associated Press)
DETROIT, April 14.—One man dead, another believed to be dying, and at least two others seriously wounded was the outcome today of a gunfight at an outside street intersection in which employees of the Bohn Foundry Company successfully fought off an attempt by four bandits to rob them of a payroll totalling $11,821.

William J. Bohn, employment manager of the company, shot through the head by one of the bandits, died in a hospital this afternoon, while a man identified as Frank Smith, and declared to have been one of the occupants of the robbers' car, was reported in a dying condition at a local hospital. Smith staggered into a house in Wetzell Court shortly after the holdup and fell unconscious on the floor. He had been shot through the arm, head and stomach.

William Seavay, a watchman, accompanying Bohn in the pay car were wounded. G. H. Ogden, paymaster of the Bohn Company, also in the pay car, was unhurt, although a bullet ploughed through his hat. The pay car was enroute from a downtown bank to the company plant in Hart avenue when the attack occurred. A short distance from the plant, it was crowded into the curb by another machine. Three occupants of the latter car jumped out and opened fire without warning. The fire was returned and ceased only when one of the bandits was wounded.

ROUGH COMES TO TERMS WITH CINCINNATI REDS

(By The Associated Press)
CINCINNATI, O., April 14.—Ed Roush, great batter and star outfielder came to terms with the Cincinnati National League club management today and may play his position in the opening game of the season next Tuesday.

Roush finally capitulated and signed a one-year contract, calling for $15,000, with no stipulation that the fee of $50 a day for remaining away from training would be refunded. However, in a telegram sent to President August Hermann, which led to the agreement, Roush expressed the hope that the directors of the club, at the end of the season, would reconsider their action and that the fine would not be enforced.

Roush's career with the Reds has been one of great glory but also of much annual trouble. Each season he has had differences with the club management over the terms of his contract and the resultant negotiations delayed him from joining the team.

G. Gilbreath of the East Tennessee State Normal College tonight made public a statement for the purpose, he said, of informing his friends throughout the South of the injustice which is being done him by state officials.
